

Che Guevara's Son on Obama's Historic Cuba Visit: « Let's See »

Par Andrea Germanos

Mondialisation.ca, 21 mars 2016

Common Dreams 18 mars 2016

Région : Latin America & Caribbean

Rights experts caution against US hypocrisy on human rights abuses

Days ahead of President Barack Obama's trip to Cuba, the oldest son of revolutionary Ernesto « Che » Guevara has expressed mixed feelings about the historic visit.

He will be the first sitting president to visit the island nation in nearly nine decades.

Camilo Guevara spoke to the Guardian about the implications of the trip, which begins Sunday, and expressed some optimism, calling it « historic and very important. » He also said that Obama « appears intelligent and sensitive towards the major problems of humanity. »

A Che Guevara mural on a wall in Havana. (Photo: Leif Eliasson/flickr/cc)

But he qualified by noting that Obama « was supported by corporate America. »

He also said that his father « felt that we could also transmit ourselves outwards ... Maybe we can influence the U.S. in a positive way, » he said.

“But the U.S. is an empire, » he added. « Their nature is not to set the table and invite you for a feast. History shows us that every time they set a table, you have to accept you might be poisoned or stabbed in the back. But let's see. »

As the New York Times reported earlier this month:

Talks on the trip have been unfolding for months, after the two presidents first discussed it during a September meeting in New York at the United Nations General Assembly, their second meeting after announcing the policy shift in December 2014. Mr. Obama told Mr. Castro that he would like to visit Cuba before the end of his term, but that he would be willing to make the trip only if he could justify it by pointing to concrete progress in the normalization process. He instructed senior White House aides to begin working toward that goal.

The LA Times reported Friday that « Obama is expected to sharply criticize his hosts for human rights abuses, and plans to meet with political dissidents the White House has chosen. »

But he should rethink such criticism, argues law professor Marjorie Cohn, writing at Common Dreams Friday that « a comparison of Cuba's human rights record with that of the United States shows that the U.S. should be taking lessons from Cuba. »

« The U.S. government criticizes civil and political rights in Cuba while disregarding Cubans' superior access to universal housing, health care, education, and its guarantee of paid maternity leave and equal pay rates, » she wrote.

And of course there's the issue of the U.S.'s notorious offshore prison on Cuban soil.

« Guantanamo Bay is an international symbol of the breakdown of the rule of law and systemic abuse, » said Human Rights First's Daphne Eviatar in a media statement Friday. « President Obama will likely raise Cuba's human rights record when he meets with officials; the continued operation of Guantanamo will make it more difficult for him to have moral leadership on the issue, » she said.

While Politico reported that the trip marks « a symbolic next chapter in his attempts to normalize relations with the country, » Alexander Main, senior associate on international policy at the Center for Economic and Policy Research, said Thursday, « Obama's trip to Cuba is being spun as a great advance in U.S.-Latin American relations, but the reality is that the administration is doubling down on its support for the right in the region and its ongoing efforts to isolate left-wing governments like Venezuela's, against whom the Obama administration just renewed sanctions. »

La source originale de cet article est Common Dreams
Copyright © Andrea Germanos, Common Dreams, 2016

Articles Par : Andrea Germanos

Avis de non-responsabilité : Les opinions exprimées dans cet article n'engagent que le ou les auteurs. Le Centre de recherche sur la mondialisation se dégage de toute responsabilité concernant le contenu de cet article et ne sera pas tenu responsable pour des erreurs ou informations incorrectes ou inexactes.

Le Centre de recherche sur la mondialisation (CRM) accorde la permission de reproduire la version intégrale ou des extraits d'articles du site Mondialisation.ca sur des sites de médias alternatifs. La source de l'article, l'adresse url ainsi qu'un lien vers l'article original du CRM doivent être indiqués. Une note de droit d'auteur (copyright) doit également être indiquée.

Pour publier des articles de Mondialisation.ca en format papier ou autre, y compris les sites Internet commerciaux, contactez: media@globalresearch.ca Mondialisation.ca contient du matériel protégé par le droit d'auteur, dont le détenteur n'a pas toujours autorisé l'utilisation. Nous mettons ce matériel à la disposition de nos lecteurs en vertu du principe "d'utilisation équitable", dans le but d'améliorer la compréhension des enjeux politiques, économiques et sociaux. Tout le matériel mis en ligne sur ce site est à but non lucratif. Il est mis à la disposition de tous ceux qui s'y intéressent dans le but de faire de la recherche ainsi qu'à des fins éducatives. Si vous désirez utiliser du matériel protégé par le droit d'auteur pour des raisons autres que "l'utilisation équitable", vous devez demander la permission au détenteur du droit d'auteur.

Contact média: media@globalresearch.ca