This article dispels the myth that Syria is a sectarian society with a government dominated by the Alawite.

It is worth noting that the wife of president Al-Assad is Sunni.

The vast majority of the seats in the parliament have gone to Sunni. (M.Ch. GR Editor)

DAMASCUS: The Second Legislative Elections are now complete and all votes have been counted as announced by His Honor, Advisory Judge Hishaam Al-Shara' who heads the High Judicial Electoral Committee.

Once again, SyrPer takes the lead in exposing the lies about Syria's government and people.

We exposed them last year with our listing of the members of the government and their religion to demonstrate that Syria is ruled by the majority - NOT BY SOME ESOTERIC MINORITY, as claimed by the enemies of the Syrian people.

Today, we demonstrate again the fact that Syria is a multifaceted, mosaic society whose government reflects the character, texture, fabric and make-up of her population.

In the following, we will list the winners in each governorate and indicate their religion or denomination, based on the information received, and we will point out the women who succeeded in garnering a seat in the People’s Assembly. Note that the letter “S” will indicate Sunni.

 Dr. Assad, the president of the Syrian Arab Republic who is of Alawi stock, votes with his wife, Asmaa (nee Al-Akhras) Al-Assad, who is Sunni. This is the true nature of Syrian society. Like most Muslims in Syria, the Assads are not particularly religious although they respect all faiths.
